

Handcrafted jewellery in traditional and contemporary designs under one roof

The exhibition was inaugurated on Thursday

One of south India's oldest bullion dealers, Kalasha Fine Jewels (a unit of CapsGold (Estd. 1901)) is presenting a jewellery showcase for the people of Coimbatore. The exhibition, which kickstarted on April 28, has on display handcrafted jewels — in both traditional and contemporary designs — exclusively curated by jewellery curator Aparna Sunku and hosted by director Abhishek Chanda. This collection is said to be an amalgamation of royal heritage and rich culture, making it a visual treat. Priyanka Sundar, Pista Devi Jhajharia, Rashida M Raja and Dr Karpagam Murali, who were guests of honour on Day 1 of the exhibition, seemed impressed with the variety on display.

The exhibition offers a varied range of designs with collections in gold, diamond and jadau. The brand takes pride in showcasing iconic bridal jewellery, made with uncut and precisely fine-cut diamonds and gemstones. It also offers a wide range of jewellery in a plethora of styles — from extravagant bridal affairs to elegant everyday jewellery from festive collections to statement and contemporary pieces — which appeal to the varying tastes of people, all under one roof.

The brand is known for beautifully mixing age-old tradition and modern elegance to come out with striking pieces. They say they treasure the concept of art and culture in the arena of jewellery making, which, they claim, has been one of the reasons why they have long been known for exclusive handcrafted jewellery. "Trust, value, quality and exclusivity are our core values, and they are evident in every piece of our jewellery," they say.
